Excerpt: . . . 8 own choosing, for the purpose of negotiating the terms and condi-2 tions of their employment, or other mutual aid or protection. The NLRA is a relatively straightforward law. Section 7 of the NLRA establishes the fundamental rights of workers to self-orga-nization, to form, join, or assist labor organizations, to bargain col-lectively through representatives of their own choosing, and to en-gage in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection, and shall also have the 3 right to refrain from any or all of such activities. . . Section 8 lays out a variety of prohibitions for both employer and union be-4 havior. For example, employers may not interfere with, coerce, in-timidate, or discriminate against employees in the exercise of their Section 7 rights. The NLRA also requires employers to bargain in good faith with their employees exclusive bargaining representa-tive, when a union is voluntarily recognized as such by the em-ployer or certified as such by the National...
