I will present the fair committee with one of my ideas--an idea that might bring in in JI, t 00 Oo In the museum at Boolak, in Kgypt, lies the mummified corpse of Rameses II, the Pharaoh of the Exodus, with that of his daughter, the savior of Moses, and other less distinguished of the royal Egyptian family of that era. I had authorized an agent to offer the Egyptian government as much as 100, 000l to allow me to exhibit those remains in Europe and the United States. I will relinquish my right of priority of claim in the idea to the fair committee. Let them obtain the loan of these mortuary relics from the Egyptian government and allow the Khedive to send his own soldiers to guard the coffins. Think of the stupendousness of the incongruity! To exhibit to the people of the nineteenth century, in a country not discovered until: . . . 20 or 3000 years after his death the corpse of the king of whom we have the earliest record! Consider, too, that that corpse is so perfectly preserved after thousands of years in the tomb that its features are almost perfect; so perfect that every man, woman, and child who looks upon the mummy may know the countenance of the despot who exerted so great an influence upon the history of the world. And it might be a useful thought to this generation, proud of its scientific and mechanical...
