Consequences.--Wasting is one of the commonest consequences, or, at all events, concomitants. It has been said that in some cases it is due to the poverty of the mother s milk, which causes not only constipation but wasting. It certainly is not always the cause, because not infrequently when after an aperient the bowels begin to act regularly, weight is at once gained, even though there is no alteration in the feeding. Perhaps deficient secretion of the intestinal juices leads to imperfect digestion of the food, or perhaps to imperfect absorption. And when by suitable aperients the intestinal glands are stimulated, digestion and absorption are improved and weight is gained. In some cases the wasting seems to be due to the continual restlessness which the constipation causes. The child is kept constantly uncomfortable, and as the attacks of colic come on he screams and...
